A Small Item of two or three Millions

An accession to the estate of the late Mark Hopkins has come to light. About a month ago C. P. Huntington, while here casually mentioned that he had in his possession a lot of [illegible] bonds aggregating between two and three millions, which he purchased some time ago at the request of the deceased. He supposed that they were included in the inventory of the estate in which he was mistaken, such a small item having been overlooked by the executors of the estate. They will now be added to the inventory

Some Labor Reform Theories.

(From the October Atlantic.)

Our friends regard the production and preservation of wealth as being due almost entirely to labor. They often say that laboring classes distinct from the class of capitalists and cultivated people—have created the wealth of the country, and it is sometimes claimed that it justly belongs to them. The [illegible] people do not generally understand how much the production and existence of [illegible] depend upon other elements than muscular exertion. They do not appreciate the part which is performed by cultivated brains and capitalists in organizing and conducting business enterprises in adapting production to the markets of the world and in directing the labor of multitudes of men in the use of costly machinery as [illegible] the capital invested. They do not understand clearly that the destruction of capital ruins the laborers of the country by destroying the business which gives them employment. Many laborers think they are in some way benefited by all the losses sustained by capitalists. Wealth is not so stable or permanent as our friends believe. It is of a sensitive nature and does not bear rough handling. It is easy to destroy the value of [illegible] of property or investment by injudicious legislation or mischievous municipal agitation. But many men believe that by means of legislation "in the interests of labor," and by severe taxation, most of the wealth now in the possession of rich men and corporations can be transferred without impairment to the [illegible] of the working people. I think the result, if their plans could be carried out, would be the gradual annihilation and [illegible] of the wealth of the country. There would no longer be any disparity of [illegible] between rich and poor because all would be poor alike. Our organized industries would be destroyed. All machinery that requires the co-operation of many laborers would be disused and we should be obliged to return to the conditions and methods of life of the days before the introduction of improved labor saving machinery when the people of our country depended wholly upon agriculture and such manufactures as could be carried on in their homes. The world's wealth will not be permanently increased or reproduced if the essential conditions under which it has been created are destroyed.

Might does not make right or justice on the side of the people any more than on that of the [illegible] few who are regarded as their oppressors. Excessive taxation is robbery, though the guilt and dishonor of it may be distributed among millions of voters. When the people make a law which compels the capitalists of a city to deliver up their wealth [illegible] of the city treasury for distribution among the laborers of the municipality in the form of unnecessary and dishonest appropriations for improvements the act is not more honest because committed by the [illegible] under the forms of law. It is important to teach the people of our country that nothing in their political action can be wrong [illegible], that robbery and injustice are to be accounted right when perpetrated by the majority by means of the ballot.

The South in Favor of Tilden

NEW YORK Sept 29—The World [illegible] continuing to swell the Hancock boom in the south, says, "Allen president of the Farmers' Union of Alabama is out in a letter advocating Hancock for the presidency." Leading articles in the Selma Times and Montgomery Advertiser commend the attitude of the World and urge Hancock. The Charleston News and Courier says Tilden is the only democrat who could be placed in the field [illegible] the south would not be substantially solid. It is just as well for his friends in the [illegible] to look facts in the face. The [illegible] southern delegates would of course vote for anybody who might be placed at the head of the national party ticket in [illegible] democratic [illegible] at the south [illegible] never again be brought to the polls [illegible] of Tilden

[illegible] Welcomed by an Army of San Francisco School Children

[illegible]

A low [illegible] present [illegible] children [illegible] teachers connected with the public schools of San Francisco. These happy faces will tell their own story

Another uproarious outbreak of applause followed after which the general addressed his audience to the following effect

It is a gratifying sight to witness this evidence of educational privileges afforded by this [illegible] city. The crowds gathered inside and outside this building indicate that every child of age for school is provided for. When education is generally diffused we may feel assured of permanency and perpetuity of our institutions. The greatest danger to our people arises out of ignorance and this evidence of universality of education is the best guarantee of your loyalty to American principles

At the conclusion of his remarks General Grant and the board of education made their way out of the building and following the winding avenue of the grounds proceeded to the great amphitheater on the other side of the grounds. Children by thousands lined the walks and pelted the party with bouquets while shrill cheers and continual rattle of drums with which each class was provided created a bedlam of noise. On reaching the amphitheater where at least 8 000 boys and girls were massed the storm of floral missiles waxed heavier and on gaining the stand at the exit the party presented a thoroughly dilapidated appearance. The general took his seat at the front of the platform and the throng then marched by to the table each one to obtain a good look at him. As the enthusiastic throng surged by hundreds of hands were thrust out for a passing shake and the demand for autographs was altogether beyond the general's ability to supply. The shower of flowers was kept up despite the efforts of the teachers and members of the board to stay it and the party were almost overwhelmed with those tributes. At least 30 000 children were present and though the teachers were able to maintain reasonably good order it was impossible to restrain the holiday spirits of the masses within the bounds of decorum. At 1 o'clock young legions were still marching past in review with drums banners mottoes and flags while the general maintained his position and faced the constant fire of bouquets with his accustomed tenacity and pluck

UNION COUNTY FAIR.

Two Days' Report—Attendance Increasing—Fair Weather—Interesting Horse-Races

(SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.)

WALLA WALLA Sept 29—The attendance at the Union county fair yesterday the opening day was thin and the weather good. Pools easy. Saddle races free to all who have never won money—[illegible] won time 1:56 Humboldt second. Rat [illegible] third Walking race—Won by Tornado. Seven were entered but were ruled distanced for breaking a walk.

Double in harness—Smoker and Dead Shot win; time 4:20. Nig and Bull second. Mary Warwick and Patsey third

Second Day

The attendance was much better on the second day than on the first the weather being fine. A shower last night made the track heavy but thoroughly laid the dust adding greatly to the personal comfort of the people in attendance.

Dash best two in three—Buffalo Bill won, 2:10 2:14. Oregon Charley 2d. Billy Bowlegs 3d. Track very heavy weather cloudy. Buffalo Bill won the race easy and might have distanced the other two. Pools low

Trotting race two in three in harness—Mary Warwick won; time 4:14. Token and Tornado competing. They were distanced on the first heat. Tornado trotted under the saddle. It was the poorest race ever trotted in Eastern Oregon

A New Mineral Field

(From the Yankee Fork Herald.)

A number of fine gold and silver bearing ledges have been discovered this season on the headwaters of East Fork of Salmon and about ten miles from the Wood river mines. By the Warm Springs trail the distance to these mines from Bonanza is 42 to 45 miles. Most of the ore is argentiferous galena but some milling ore is found containing a large per cent of gold. Six locations have been made, the ore in most of them assaying satisfactorily. One ledge contains three feet of ore in which is a vein 14 inches thick that assays over 100 ounces silver. The galena is almost as hard as rock. The Crassus, discovered by James Steele has a vein from 10 to 12 feet in width. The poorest of the ore assays about $12 in gold and $30 in silver. The ledge has been opened in several places and good assays had. The best of the ore on the Crassus assays $110. The formation is principally limestone and granite with some lime

About five miles north of the above mentioned mines a party of prospectors have discovered a number of ledges similar to those in the Steele district. So far as these new mines on the east fork are developed they show good bodies of ore and indicate permanency. The distance from the mines to the Salmon is about fifteen miles, from Bay Horse forty five miles and from Kinnickinick thirty five miles

This mineral belt is from 12 to 20 miles in width and from 140 to 150 miles in length. It extends from Bay Horse through to Lower Wood river and beyond the summit of Wood river widens out and can be followed through to the head of Smoky. Up Warm Springs creek below the mouth of Yankee Fork and on the south side of the Salmon mines have been found this season several of them assaying up in the hundreds of dollars

In all the East Fork country there is an abundance of wood water and grass. We doubt if there is so extensive a mineral field containing so much good surface ore anywhere in the west as that in and adjoining the Yankee Fork country. New developments are coming to light daily and the country is full of prospectors who will make many a valuable discovery [illegible]

Advice of G W Curtis to Disaffected Republicans

NEW YORK Sept [illegible]—Geo Wm Curtis in this week's Harper's Weekly thus advises republicans disaffected toward Cornell. There is but one way in which they can vote so as to defeat the machine and at the same time keep New York republican. It is the only way in which the individual voter can ever effect party management, for when party managers discover that if they outrage the convictions of party followers, those followers will not follow, the managers will take heed. To republicans therefore resolved not to vote for Cornell because they regard his nomination as a blow to the best interests of the party our advice is not to vote the democratic ticket but to make their vote count for republican principles and against republican mismanagement by scratching the ticket. Should the whole ticket be defeated they would not be responsible for any of the results of democratic success. If the whole ticket be elected they would have done what they believed to be the best for the party and for the country and they would have learned courage which is the great need of our politics

An Eastern Review of the Decision of Judge Deady in the Chinese Case

NEW YORK Sept 28—The Times reviews the decision of Judge Deady on the Chinese case saying: The newspapers afflicted with Chinaphobia are unhappily inclined to assert with superfluous passion that nobody but dwellers in some one of the Pacific States are, or can be qualified to express an intelligent opinion on the abstract Chinese question. In California we understand that it is necessary that one should establish his claim to be a pioneer (that is one who arrived on the coast prior to January 1 1850) before he gains a right to entertain an opinion on this intricate and abstruse subject. As for Judge Deady's dictum that the right to live in this country carries with it a right to work for a living the anti Chinese papers are inclined to believe that this is not good law. At least one of them says that this is an assumption which may be determined by law and though it may be admitted that a right to earn a living may be implied from the terms of the Burlingame treaty which concedes the right to live this implication may not hold good against an express prohibition. That is to say the right to earn a living is only implied in the treaty while prohibition exists unmistakably on the statute books of a sovereign state. And it is broadly asserted that the treaty gives the Chinese a right to live in this country but it does not give them the right to work. This is the refinement of proscription which we confess we were not prepared to expect. And when we were told that there is a vast difference between the conference upon the Chinese the right to spend their money in the country and conferring upon them the right to come here and make money we must acknowledge feelings of admiration for a subtle and ingenious plea. A liberal construction of the meaning of the word trade employed in the treaty to define one of the privileges which it is agreed are conferred on the Chinese would certainly include the right to be employed. Trade is usually understood to mean barter and sale but it may very fairly include the hiring of manual labor. The merchant [illegible] which make the Chinese so objectionable to their Caucasian neighbors in the Pacific states are known as traders, though these may not be classed as among the purposes of trade recognized by the treaty unless we resort to the same species of quibbling as that employed to separate the right to live from the right to earn a living. Certainly none but the most bigoted would set up the monstrous pretense that the privilege of trade as expressly conferred on the citizens of both nations by the Burlingame treaty does not confer on the Chinese the right to come here and make money as is denied [illegible] by the newspaper [illegible]. The success of the doctrine would not only destroy the implied right to trade—that is to say to barter and sell goods. Or is it set up that the Chinese trader in the United States may buy and sell provided he [illegible] at a loss? [illegible] that the government is no more [illegible] the Chinese shall live in this country than it is to [illegible] itself about the [illegible] of an American citizen who might want to visit China. This is the cool assumption of newspapers which profess to teach the people their rights and duties [illegible] an inferior and alien race. As we have before [illegible] there is not in this an unbiassed decision or any examination of the question of the desirability of Chinese immigration. That matter has long since been relegated to the [illegible] who have rapidly and passionately [illegible] that they do not want the Chinese among them. But this newspaper but is an attempt to throw discredit on the courts of the country although it is admitted that the judge who made the decision is in the [illegible] in sympathy with the majority of his fellow citizens so far as the main question is concerned. It should be understood that the anxiety of the California people in this matter arises from the fact that the new constitution contains [illegible]

A NIGHT ON THE MOUNTAINS.

VOICES OF THE NIGHT HEARD IN THE LONELY SIERRAS

Joaquin Miller in the Independent

Perhaps the grandest poem on earth is night in a deep half tropical forest. There is nothing so mighty so Miltonic as this the [illegible] voice at night. When I was living in the southern Sierras one of your greatest preachers came that way and I by chance got to talking to him of the voices and noises high up on the mountains. He was honestly amazed. He said he thought the world slept in the wilderness but he would find the world very much awake if he would spend a night high up from the habitations of man. He was resolved to see. And so with two blankets and two pistols some bread and a bottle of provisions, we climbed up the steep timbered mountain a mile above any habitation. We spread our blankets under a mighty tree. We saw the day fade and lie on the far snow peaks and its ghost came down in darkness and covered us with its wings. The first thing we heard was a great black bug that came buzzing along. It struck the tree and fell down on the doctor's blanket. Nothing dangerous in a bug. The doctor was delighted. He caught it up and classified it with a Latin name long enough to kill it, put a pin through it and [illegible] to keep it as a specimen and trophy of the night. Suddenly far across the other mountain there arose the howl of one hundred wolves, then one thousand wolves high up on the mountain top made the woods tremble. The doctor was not a bit frightened. He only sat up a little closer to me and [illegible] gently that he thought it was going to rain. Then a broad winged bird a black owl struck in the bough above us as if he meant to tear down the tree. "I am subject to rheumatism" said the doctor "and I do not want to get wet." Then there came a crash. A great grizzly bear that evidently had business in somebody's hog pen tore through the brush and woods on his way to the settlement. Possibly the doctor wanted the bear for a specimen also, for he [illegible] up his bundle and started for the nearest house. He should have waited to see the moon come wheeling up and out over the Sierras white and vast as the snow peaks she laid her bridal bare shoulders to the white cloud, to hear the far faint call of the nightbirds, the beast—the thousand notes in the poetry and song of nature at night

ON THE WEST SIDE.

A Ride [illegible] to McMinnville, St Joseph, Lafayette, Dayton and Amity—The Crops, the People and the Condition of the Country, Etc., Etc.

[illegible]

[illegible] Wonderful simply wonderful are the changes which a few years have made in Yamhill county. One to whom five years ago its every section was thoroughly familiar [illegible] swamps and swales then verdant [illegible] are now the scenes of active harvest [illegible] golden yellow squares [illegible]

The first town of pretensions reached by rail is

ST JOSEPH

Better known by its nickname [illegible]. It has [illegible] a fortnight enjoyed a transient [illegible] as the terminal point of the west side railroad. Its glory, alas has departed and with it the telegraph office, railroad offices etc. which formed the staple of its importance and [illegible]. Its people have departed several of its houses are being moved [illegible] to more favored localities and Uncle Sam has just put upon it the back breaking straw of indignity by discontinuing its postoffice. Soon St Joseph will live only as a memory and within the half century in which it was founded its very name may be forgot. It was intended to be a great city but the people did not come and [illegible]

The westside extension commences at a point one fourth of a mile north of St Joe just at the point where the county road connecting Lafayette and McMinnville crosses the main track. From here it runs to

McMINNVILLE

In almost a straight line touching the east limit of the town or city, as it insists upon being called in the fresh pride of its railroad proprietorship. McMinnville until within a few months had made but little progress in ten years. The fire which recently burned its best business part was in the end almost a benefit arousing the people to recover from its effects. The energy thus awakened has lasted and with the impetus of railroad and other enterprise is resulting in a degree of activity and prosperity for many years unknown. Nearly a score of houses several of them substantial brick structures are in process of construction. Improvements are being made on every hand, trade is good and growing and merchants and all classes are prosperous and hopeful. In fact the hopeful feeling is a little too extreme. The people of the city or several with whom I conversed imagine that the railroad is going to do wonders for them and in anticipation of these wonders property has advanced to rates which may not be permanent. At present however McMinnville is on the flood tide of progress and its people who have better opportunities for knowing than anybody else are confident that it is real and permanent

A gallop of five miles carried me to

LAFAYETTE,

Which looks contented and listless as of yore. Lafayette has made but little progress in ten years. In general effect the houses that have been recently built though several are large and elegant but little more than offset the effects of decay. The railroads have passed it by on both sides and it has simply a neighborhood trade. Its sole dignity the possession of the county offices. The court house stands red and rusty familiar as a friend and much of the time with its prison cells unlocked. Lafayette's pride is its academy which enjoys a wide and enviable fame and attracts attendance from any section of the county

Three miles southeast of Lafayette by what was once a forest road but is now bounded on each side by grain fields is

DAYTON

Prosperous in a small way and far ahead of the Dayton of ten years ago. The narrow gauge railroad terminating here has done much to improve the town but it has not been the extraordinary blessing which too sanguine people expected. Much of the trade occasioned by farmers hauling their wheat to town has been stopped but the casual profits of the railroad more than compensate the town. Several trains heavily loaded with grain arrive each day and give the place an active and bustling character

From Dayton to Amity the road leads through a succession of grain fields [illegible] miles there is scarcely a break in the [illegible] and in many of them grain threshed sacked and ready for shipment is piled up

AMITY

Was enjoying the consummation of its great ambition when I arrived. [illegible] old and young were out in a state of excitement [illegible] the first steam cars ran in England [illegible] the first steam cars passed through Amity. Amity is a lively country town with a good trade, reliable business men, good [illegible] and church privileges and is contented and thrifty

BUNCH GRASS

How the Mississippi Plan has Affected the Democratic Party.

From the Vicksburg (Miss.) Herald (Conservative Dem.)

The Maine election furnishes food for reflection to those of our state who take a patriotic interest in public affairs. Maine has followed California and joined the republican phalanx. This has been done by a vote too significant to be passed over. In California the triumph of the republicans is greater than themselves expected and in Maine Mr Blaine's estimates have been surpassed. These two elections show beyond question the drift of public sentiment in the north. They show that that drift is towards the republican party so steadily that but a short time will be needed to make the north as solidly republican as the south is democratic. It cannot be denied that the same ratio of gain for the republicans will certainly lose us New York and Indiana. There is to be an election in New York this fall, and if the tide is not turned in some way we will lose the state beyond a doubt. There will be no election in Indiana this fall and it is perhaps a good thing for the democratic party that such is the case

That the Yazoo and Rankin affairs have had great effect on the northern people cannot be denied. We know of nothing that has created more unfavorable comment since the war than the deplorable occurrences in Yazoo county. This affair, and the continued mention of Mr Davis' name for the United States senate from this state, have without any sort of doubt caused many thousands that would have voted with us to vote against us. The issue made by our leaders for free elections is answered by the reverberation of the shotgun in Yazoo. The situation is by no means encouraging to the democratic party. The party in the south by some of its extreme men is undoubtedly a dead weight to the northern men

There is but one hope for us. The party in this state has committed errors. It must commit no more and it must undo those already committed. There must be no more appeals to force, fraud or intolerance and extreme men must be sent to the rear or kicked out of the party

(West Point (Miss) Echo Dem)

God bless the good people of Yazoo and may He ever nerve their arms to strike when all that they hold dear in this world is imperiled

(Macon (Miss) Star Dem)

The truth is negro suffrage has been the bane of the south and we say as we have said before, could we wipe out the amendments by a single stroke of the pen we would do it

(Jackson (Miss) Comet Dem)

Lamar is reported to have said that if the negroes leave Mississippi will blossom like a rose. He is exactly right. A whole decade has been frittered away in this state in dependence upon the negro

(Oxford (Miss) Falcon Dem)

The manly and determined stand taken by the Hon Ethel Barksdale in indorsing the action of the people of Yazoo calls forth the admiration and indorsement of all true democrats. Score one for Barksdale

(Corinth (Miss) Herald Dem)

State sovereignty against national supremacy is the square issue that Clay county makes in her conflict on. There is much this foreshadows that as the coming issue of the country before which the currency and all else will be to a great extent lost sight of

THE CALIFORNIA RAILROAD BILL

The long political contest through which California has passed [illegible] significance to the determination of the people to regulate the Central Pacific railroad. It was this mainly that produced the new constitution. This, too gave color and complexion to the recent election. Under the new constitution control of the railroads is vested absolutely in three commissioners elected by the people. Regulations made by these commissioners may not be disturbed by the legislature nor reviewed by the courts. In the annual report of the president of the Central Pacific company just published it is intimated that the authority of the railroad commissioners of the state will be contested as being in conflict with the laws of congress. The constitutionality of the Thurman bill has been affirmed by the supreme court and this bill declares that a certain proportion of the net income of the road shall be paid over to the treasury of the United States. But now comes the constitution of the state with a provision that the gross income of the company's road shall be regulated and controlled by three commissioners and the president therefore claims that the two are wholly inconsistent as the commissioners on the part of the state may so regulate the gross income as to leave no net for the sinking fund contemplated by the Thurman bill. Here it is suggested is the conflict of jurisdiction and authority and "a judicial decision determining between these two mighty conflicting powers is necessary for protection of the interests of stockholders and the credit of the company."

Thus, that capital measure which was enacted for the purpose of settling at once and forever the railroad question in California a measure which, in order that no obstacles might be interposed, took the whole business out of the hands of legislature and courts and placed it beyond the reach of any tribunal of appeal except the people themselves, who might be appealed to through the agency of amendments to the constitution brings on at the very beginning a course of litigation which will obstruct the enforcement of this singular constitutional enactment and perhaps lead to its supersedure or nullification. The matter will go through the various stages of procedure to the supreme court of the United States. This will take time—perhaps two or three years. Meanwhile the company, protected by process of the courts of the United States will be able to prevent the enforcement of the regulations which may be provided by the commissioners on the part of the state. It has seemed all the time probable that the people of California, in their eagerness and determination to get the better of the railroad, were resorting to measures so unusual and extreme as to prepare the way for defeat of their own objects. The virtual announcement by the company that the action of the state will be contested on the ground that it leads to direct conflict of authority with the United States, as written in the Thurman bill, suggests a contest based on reasons by no means trifling.

AN APOCRYPHAL STORY

A story is told by the New York World of an alleged alliance between Blaine and Sherman against Grant. It is claimed that it was in pursuance of this scheme that the arrangement was made by which Sherman should go to Maine to make speeches on Blaine's invitation, and that Blaine should go to Ohio on Sherman's. The editor of the Tribune is asserted to be the person through whom this arrangement was effected. In support of the theory of this alliance the course of the Tribune since Grant landed at San Francisco is cited. It is remarked as significant that that journal is lavish of its praises of Grant in every character and capacity save that of a prospective president, and that it repeats constantly the statement that this is a capacity in which he should never permit himself to figure. And it is asserted that should the strategy of persuading Grant to declare himself out of the field by praising him conditionally, fail, direct methods of attack will be employed, and that in order to crush him the entire patronage of the government will be thrown against him.

It is hardly probable that an important and authoritative programme, such as this purports to be, would be entrusted to an opposition journal. An inventive and creative mind seems in this case to be making a great deal out of a few simple circumstances. Blaine and Sherman are both experienced politicians. They are not so wanting in sagacity as to form such an alliance, or any kind of alliance. What political dickering comes to always they know well. Besides the programme attributed to them could not redound to the advantage of both. It could not make both of them president. The fact of their "changing work"—as farmers used to say—in their respective states, does not look so much like a purpose to crush Grant as to beat the opposition party. As for the Tribune's suggestion that Grant should not think of being a candidate again it expresses the views of a large number of those who remember his great services with highest respect, but who nevertheless think that the traditions of the country as to two terms should be observed, and at the same time that no new honor could be added to him by his obtainment of the presidency again. He has moreover said that he is not a candidate and said it in words as plain and direct as were necessary for one to use to whom the candidacy has not been offered. But should he be the candidate there will be reasons therefor which will outweigh all considerations which may be involved in the schemes of maneuvering politicians. He cannot be a candidate except in obedience to a loud general and indeed overwhelming, popular demand. And in that case it will be manifest why he is called.

A few days since we had by telegraph an item which stated that no less than three lines of railroad were now under construction to connect the Missouri river with the Pacific ocean, though probably few are aware that such is the fact. One of these is the Northern Pacific, another is the Texas and Southern Pacific, and the third west bound line is advancing by two branches, one of which has reached Bloomington Neb and the other Gaylord, Neb, which last named place is 232 miles west of the Missouri river. These branches are about one hundred miles apart but are to be run together the point of convergence being about the Colorado state line. From the point of junction the road will be built over a level plain to Denver. [illegible] as fast as the rails can be brought. The Chicago Inter-Ocean gives the [illegible] of the scheme thus: An alliance is [illegible] the programme between the [illegible] double-track trunk line of the [illegible] Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe [illegible] Denver, as is well known by [illegible] quired auxiliary and [illegible] and Rio Grande. As is also well known the Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe is [illegible] with hundreds of men at work [illegible] Pacific, and so in the near [illegible] before a year is past—a brand new route may be added to the railroad map one terminus Chicago (via any of its Big Muddy tributaries) and the other the sea at some point of Southern California. The railroad prospect widens—the horizon is quite lost.

Oxford county, Maine, has produced many governors. In that county were born Alvin K. Parris, Enoch Lincoln, Hannibal Hamlin, [illegible] Dana, Sidney Perham and [illegible] W[illegible] all governors of [illegible] as [illegible] of Oregon. Washburn governor of W[illegible] and [illegible] governor of [illegible]. It [illegible] by the republicans of Massachusetts [illegible] Maine by the way has further [illegible] Michigan [illegible] Vermont [illegible] California and John A. Andrew [illegible] Massachusetts. The last contains [illegible] Oxford county is still Maine hadn't sent out La Fayette Grover Oregon would have been spared a [illegible] administration [illegible] the future of [illegible] would know nothing of the [illegible] dispatches framed in an attempt to [illegible] seal and falsify the vote of a state.

Party non-[illegible] assemblies usually adopt resolutions deprecating the course of their adversaries in general terms. They fulminate general accusations in ways which are very much like denouncing sin in the abstract and their generalities get little attention. But the Massachusetts republicans heretofore most cautiously and in no degree conservative are moved by the recent manifestation of the southern democratic spirit to specific statements. They say there is a defiant declaration of a purpose to repeal laws made necessary by and framed to secure the results of the war and an attempt to secure by legislation what was not accomplished by arms namely the establishment under the name of state sovereignty of the pernicious doctrines which destroy national supremacy including a fierce partisan intolerance which prevents a free ballot and denies freedom of political opinion and action.

Postmaster General Key has telegraphed the postal agent at Atlanta that the shooting of the postmaster at Blackville South Carolina requires immediate attention. The postmaster general will abolish the office if the postmaster is not safe while performing his duties and is not protected by the local authorities. Nix, the postmaster is a colored man and a leader of his people, and the whites don't want him in office. Harcog names the person who shot him as a man named Williams. The shot passed through his arm and across his breast. He says I called upon the authorities for assistance but being all democrats they refused to render any. The assassin was not even arrested.

No man, said President Hayes in his Youngstown speech can truthfully claim that he faithfully accepts the settlements of the war who sees with indifference the fifteenth amendment practically nullified. The south was given full control of its own affairs in the hope and belief that the settlements of the war would be sustained voluntarily. Has it been done? In whole communities and states citizens are denied the rights guaranteed them by the constitution and the denial is enforced by violent methods under cover of the old dogma of state supremacy which produced the rebellion.

Douglas county is also succeeding in "working down" her valuation of property. Two years ago it was $2,502,895. This year it is $2,133,118. Is Douglas county growing poor so fast? In this race to escape state taxation there is a rivalry between the counties which promises to make them all appear utterly bankrupt soon. Twenty years ago the return of the property of Douglas and Umpqua (the latter having since been incorporated with Douglas) was as great as the valuation now. Yet the wealth of the county is more than three times as great as then.

A Kansas genius representing himself as a practical farmer, has lately been visiting the fairs in that state with a prize pumpkin and he took the premiums every time. The pumpkin measured seven feet in circumference and weighed 230 pounds. Subsequently a rival farmer attempted to tap the pumpkin in the absence of the owner to get some of the seeds and discovered that it was made of wood. Have we been similarly imposed on by those big pumpkins at our Oregon state fairs?

The New York World would consider it a suicidal act, as matters now stand were the national convention of 1880 to renominate Mr Tilden. It rehearses all his 'misfortunes, so-called including physical disability and says the democrats must not be handicapped with the load. The World appeals to the south to urge some such candidacy as that of Bayard and Hancock, or Hancock and Bayard.

The proposition for biennial sessions of the legislature carried in Maine by a very large majority. The states find they are being governed too much and a majority of them have now followed the example of biennial sessions which Oregon set when she came into the union twenty years ago.

The full vote of California on governor at the late election was as follows: Perkins 67,973, Glenn 47,562, White, 44,620. Official returns elect one democrat (Berry) to congress by a vote of 20,018 to 1[illegible] for McKenna his competitor.

CITY.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.—On complaint of Alf. Carr, proprietor of the Cornucopia saloon, L. M. Rogers, C. R. Reed and C. W. Moore were arrested charged with larceny. These persons arrived on the steamer [illegible] last Saturday. During the evening the trio in walking about the city chanced to drop into the Cornucopia saloon. Carr, the proprietor, was induced to take a little hand in a game of "draw." The trio supposed that they had caught a "greeney," and began to "stock" the cards and to indulge in other dishonest practices. But Carr managed to hold his own, and paid the fellows back in their own coin. They continued to shuffle and deal with varying success, until 2 o'clock in the morning, when each member of the quartet having received a "top hand," the money was piled in heaps in the center of the table, Carr seeing every raise and going considerably more, having every confidence in the strength of his fist. The opportunity long wished for had arrived at last and the gang were ready to profit by it. They arose simultaneously, and while one made a dash for the pile at stake, about $200, another grabbed Alf., and the third raked in $200 in coin belonging to and placed just in front of him. At this juncture, Carr realized that he had fallen among thieves, and that discretion was his wisest course. Complaint was entered against Rogers, Reed and Moore, and they were apprehended and lodged in jail. The charge entered is larceny. They will have a preliminary examination to-day.

"LAST CHANCE" AGAIN.—"Last Chance" Miller is at present confined in the county jail where he will probably remain for some days. Miller's demented condition is mainly attributable to the excessive use of strong drink. He gets on a spree now and then and never ceases to drink until he becomes little better than a raving lunatic. When he gets sober he is generally rational enough. He has been drinking hard for some time and his mind is in a decided "aberrated" condition. Judge Rice thinks it would be a good idea to keep Miller in jail for some days and get the bad whisky out of him. This is a judicious course to pursue, for Miller's is a peculiar case, and physicians would have some hesitation about declaring him a proper subject for the asylum. If the proposed plan does not work, then Miller will be committed.

POSTOFFICE NOTES.—The ladies' delivery at the postoffice has been permanently closed, and letters for the fair sex will be delivered at the gentlemen's window. The space formerly occupied as the ladies' delivery is now used exclusively for the registered letter and stamp department. The general delivery window will be open from 6 to 7 P. M. only, and the carriers' window during the same hour for letters which shall have arrived after the carriers have started out. After to-day persons will waste time if they go to the office before 8 P. M., unless they have boxes. The registered letter department will close at [illegible] as usual, and the stamp window will be closed from 4:30 to 5.

THE SYNOD OF THE COLUMBIA.—This ecclesiastical body has grown in a few years into four presbyteries, named respectively Oregon, South Oregon, Puget Sound, and Idaho. The last was organized in April. Several [illegible] are in town on the way to Seattle, where the synod will meet on Thursday evening. Two of these gentlemen, Revs. [illegible] Boyd, of Walla Walla, and Thomas [illegible] Boyd, occupied Dr. Lindsley's pulpit on Sunday last.

ASSESSMENT ROLLS.—Work on the three assessment rolls is rapidly approaching completion. It is hoped that the clerks will finish the rolls to-day. Several days will be required to prepare the recapitulation, and about two weeks more in making the extensions—carrying out each man's tax. The roll will be ready to place in the hands of the sheriff about the 20th of November.

SCHOOL REPORT.—Mr. S. G. Irvin, principal of the school in district No. 31, East Portland, furnishes the following report for the month of September: Number girls enrolled, 49; number boys enrolled, 44; total enrolled, 93. Average daily attendance, 80.8; average daily absence, 2.1; cases tardiness, 6. Josie Laing and Hollie Ferguson are ranked the best scholars in the school.

Y. P. A.—The next meeting of the Young People's Association will be held this (Tuesday) evening in the vestry of the Baptist church, commencing at 7:30 P. M. sharp. The meeting will be led by Mr. Wm. Kahn. Subject of the evening: "Forgiveness." Everybody cordially invited to attend.

[illegible] CHURCH.—This little church has received a fresh coat of paint, and the committee appointed by the Sunday school are determined to make the building present a neat and handsome appearance. The Sunday school is in a very flourishing condition, about 1[illegible] pupils being in attendance.

"THE LAST OF EARTH."—The funeral of Frank Jena, late proprietor of Canyon Garden, was conducted yesterday by the Improved Order of Red Men, to which order he belonged. Rev. Dr. Lindsley officiated at the house; and the ceremonies of the order were observed at the grave.

SOCIABLES.—Two sociables to-night—at [illegible] street M. E. church and Plymouth Congregational church. The Plymouth church is in North Portland, near the Ladies' Orphans' Home. To all who attend a pleasant time is assured.

HORSE INJURED.—Dr. Raffety, of East Portland, had a valuable horse injured for life Sunday. The animal, frightened by the clatter of a passing vehicle, kicked, and his leg catching in the fills, was permanently injured.

OFF FOR OLYMPIA.—The Owls, seven in number, left yesterday morning for Olympia to participate in the baseball tournament. The additional members will leave on the steamer this morning to join them.

W. F. & CO. EXPRESS.—At the Fair grounds Col. W. F. West will assume charge of the business of Wells, Fargo & Co. which has been established during the Fair season at that point.

FROM ASTORIA.—A telegram at 4 P. M. to the Merchant's Exchange from Astoria says: British ships Victoria Cross and Isle of Bute are outside with pilots; cloudy; southwest wind.

WILL GIVE CONCERTS.—Prof. K. F. Trauner will go to Aurora in about two weeks and give a concert there. He will soon after visit The Dalles and give a concert at that place.

CASE CONTINUED.—The trial of Bernard and Fairchild, which was to have commenced at Oregon City yesterday morning, has been continued until this morning.

REMOVED.—Messrs. Walter Bros have removed to their elegant quarters in the Oro Fino block, and have opened an entirely new and large stock of goods.

BASE BALL.—On Saturday the Pinafore club of Portland beat the Bluff club of Oregon City, by 11 to 10 in nine innings.

ADMITTED.—In the U. S. circuit court yesterday morning, Ignaz Frohman, a native of Bavaria, was admitted to citizenship.

NEW BOOKS.

The following rare old work has been presented to the Portland library by L. W. Morgan, Esq., through the Hon. Matthew P. Deady: "A Geographical, Historical and Political Description of the Empire of Germany, Holland, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Prussia, Italy, Sicily, Corsica and Sardinia, with a gazetteer of reference to the principal places in those countries; compiled and translated from the German, to which are added statistical tables of all the states of Europe; translated from the German of J. G. Boetticher, of Konigsberg, with a supplementary table showing the changes since the commencement of the present war; dedicated to their majesties and the royal family; illustrated with twenty-four plates and a large three-sheet post map of Germany, Holland, Italy, etc.; London, 1800.

Her sisters, cousins and aunts were not satisfied until Abell gave each and all a sitting at his famous Gallery, which is becoming more popular daily.

BRIEF NOTES.

Common council to-night.

State fair will open to-morrow.

Snipe shooting popular sport at present.

Willamette No. 1 will have a drill this evening.

Steamer California will sail for the north this morning.

The new railroad ferryboat will soon be ready to launch.

A new cable has been stretched across the river at Stark street.

For the present the street sprinkler is like Othello—occupation gone.

Mr. Coulter is erecting a new store for Mrs. Vandyne, near the I street station, East Portland.

A meeting of St. Stephen's Guild will be held at half-past three this afternoon in the room adjoining the chapel.

Police circles are again agitated. Who will be police commissioner?" and after that question has been settled, who will be chief?

Notwithstanding the occasional showers, First street was crowded with shoppers yesterday, and the stores along that thoroughfare did a good business.

Workmen are now busily engaged at Weidler's sawmill getting out timber, frame work, etc., for a new barge, to be built above the Dalles. The material will be sent forward as rapidly as it is completed.

How is this bud of poesy from a tender Sabbath school plant—a little gyurl who is destined to fill country papers and autograph albums and—waste-baskets—with her late efflorescence?

> Oh, what a thing is love!
> It cometh from above,
> And lighteth like a dove
> On some.
> But some it never hits,
> Except to give them fits
> And take away the wits—
> Oh, hum!

IMPROVING THE CHANNELS.

As the funds appropriated for the improvement of the Columbia and Willamette were not available until about six weeks ago, the work contemplated was necessarily delayed, and as high water will soon be at hand but little can be done this year. Work is being rushed at present under Dr. Gillespie. The snag boat can operate and is employed the whole year on the upper Willamette, and is now engaged removing snags in the Yamhill river. Mr. Paquet, of East Portland, has been awarded the contract for the excavation of 500 cubic yards of rock at Dove's rock, near Rock Island. The contract for the removal of 1100 cubic yards of solid rock from the upper Columbia and Snake rivers has been let to Capt. Geo. J. Ainsworth, at a cost of $20,000. Capt. Smith has been awarded the contract for the improvement of the lower Clearwater and Reubin's rapids.

Heretofore the mouth of the Willamette river and the adjacent channels have been improved only by dredging. Now it is proposed to deepen the channels by the construction of pile dikes and dams, compelling the water to seek the center of the stream and wash out its own channel by sheer force of the current. With this object in view, Paquet & Smith have been awarded the contract to construct pile dikes and dams for the improvement of the mouth of the Willamette at the slough and in the south channel at Swan Island.

GENERAL INVITATION.

As it is impracticable to give a personal invitation to every one, we have adopted this mode of extending a cordial invitation to all of our fellow citizens of this city and state, and the territory of Washington to participate in the reception and welcome to be given to General U. S. Grant upon his arrival in Portland on or about the 12th of October next.

We would especially call upon all organized companies and associations, military and civil, to turn out in uniform, with their flags and banners, and take part in the procession. All organizations accepting this invitation will please notify, without delay, the grand marshal, Gen. John McCracken, in order that proper positions in the line may be assigned them.

It is understood that this is not a political demonstration, but an expression that the eminent services of this distinguished American citizen has rendered to his country are fully appreciated by the people of Oregon.

WM. SCHEFFLER'S ST. HELENA

SANITARY, VACUUM DISTILLED GRAPE BRANDY AND GOOD OLD EDGE HILL WINES.

Mr Scheffler is sole proprietor of the principle known as the vacuum process of distilling, by which the fusil oils are left with the residue and not incorporated with the brandy, leaving it pure and free from all deleterious substances which does and must exist in all alcoholic liquors distilled by the usual process of boiling heat. California Physicians have pronounced in its favor as against all other. Doctor Cox, government revenue officer at Cincinnati, Ohio, says in his report, that after ten years' of close investigation he can safely say that very few, if any, pure wines or brandy are exported from the Old Continent to this. He has found none in his many analyses—that all are doctored before leaving France. The French Consul at Buenos Ayres writes home to his government that so much complaint is made there of the appearance of litharge and other dangerous drugs in all their French wines, that there is great danger of losing the trade of the Argentine States. Other proofs could be cited were it necessary, to prove the superiority of the best class of California wines and brandy. Orders from responsible parties, addressed to Wm. Scheffler, or Geo. H. Beachy, St Helena, Napa county, Cal, will receive prompt attention.

A GOOD EFFECT.

The effect of the Oregon Blood Purifier although a cathartic, is mild and gentle, and produces no nausea, griping in the bowels or piles. It thoroughly cleanses the system of all impurities, restores the blood to a healthy condition and arouses the liver and kidneys from an inactive and torpid state to a natural and healthy action, imparting tone, strength and a new vigor to the entire system.

STEAM CARPET CLEANING.

MEETING OF GENERAL COMMITTEE.

[illegible] in the Council Chamber, [illegible].

The following members of the committee were present: [illegible] Thompson, Wm. Kapus, Lloyd Brooke, Wm. [illegible], S. M. Lyon, D. H. Stearns, W. H. Effinger, H. W. Corbett, H. W. Scott, [illegible], McCracken, H. C. Leonard, Wm. Reid, A. C. Gibbs, J. B. Montgomery and [illegible].

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Thompson.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mayor Thompson stated that he had received nothing further from San Francisco than had appeared in the papers. He had telegraphed to ascertain the exact date on which General Grant would sail, but no answer had been received yet. He did not wish to send another dispatch to General Grant, but already stated that he would inform him of the date of departure.

A letter was received from Geo. H. Himes, in which the proposition was made to do all the job printing necessary to be done in connection with the reception free of charge. The communication was placed on file.

A letter from Hon. W. D. Hare, of Astoria, offering, in behalf of the citizens of that place, to co-operate with the citizens of Portland in the forthcoming reception, was read. On motion of Colonel Effinger, the letter was referred to the Committee on Reception.

Mr. Gallick, of the Committee on Finance, submitted a verbal report. He stated that the committee had raised by subscription $2465. Five hundred dollars had been paid down and the remainder is available at any moment. He said he thought $3000 could be easily raised if that sum was needed. Mr. Gallick stated that Mr. Sanborn, Chairman of the Committee on Finance, had been called away and would not be able to act with the other members. Before leaving, Mr. Sanborn had suggested that Mr. A. A. Cohn be placed on the committee to act in his absence. Mr. Gallick moved that Mr. Cohn be added to the committee, which motion prevailed.

Col. McCracken, of the Committee of Arrangements, stated that matters had not yet progressed far enough to enable the committee to submit any plan of action. As soon as the date of Grant's departure was known, the committee could at once arrange a programme. He asked for further time, which was granted.

Mr. Kapus, of the Committee on Invitations, made a report, the substance of which has already been published. He read the proceedings of the committee; also a long list of Federal, State, medical and civil officers to whom invitations would be extended.

Mr. Kapus moved that the committee extend an invitation to the citizens of Portland to close their respective places of business and to decorate their houses and places of business with flags, evergreens, etc., and to participate in the reception.

After discussing for some time various minor details connected with the coming reception, the meeting adjourned, subject to the call of the Chairman.

THE FORGETFULNESS OF PEOPLE.

The Oxford Professor who, to avoid the wind when taking snuff, turned around, but forgot to turn back, and walked six miles into the country, was no more forgetful than those who still use the huge, drastic, cathartic pills, forgetting that Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, which are sugar coated, and little larger than mustard seeds, are a positive and reliable cathartic, readily correcting all irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Tablets.
Recommended by Dentists generally.

DR. MINTIE'S "SPECIAL" MEDICINES

Are made from the best materials obtainable. They are not cure alls. They are favorite prescriptions that have been tried and tested for years in his extensive practice, until now they are absolutely perfect in the troubles for which they are recommended.

The NEPHRETICUM works wonders in Kidney and Bladder complaints. Those suffering with Dropsy, Bright's disease, Diabetes, Gravel, Retention of urine, Pain in the back, Incontinence, or any disease of the Kidney and Bladder, will be astonished at the relief one bottle will afford.

For Female weakness it is absolutely without an equal.

For all derangements of the Liver,
Use Dr. Mintie's English Dandelion Liver Pills.

For Biliousness and Dyspepsia,
Use Dr. Mintie's English Dandelion Liver Pills.

For Fever and Ague,
Use Dr. Mintie's English Dandelion Liver Pills.

Every family should keep the Dandelion Pills on hand.

See what the druggists say about Dr. Mintie's medicines: "Everybody speaks highly of them."—C. H. Woodard & Co., druggists, Portland. "All who take them recommend them."—John A. Child, druggist, Portland. Messrs. Abrams & Carroll, wholesale druggists, San Francisco, say: "We regard Dr. Mintie's Nephreticum as the best Kidney and Bladder remedy before the public." All druggists keep these medicines.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER'S VITAL RESTORATIVE:

The great English remedy—has made more cures of Nervous Debility, Seminal Weakness, Lost Manhood, nocturnal emissions, lassitude, inability for mental labor, despondency, and such diseases as are induced by youthful follies and excesses, than all other medicines combined.

It is not a stimulant nor excitant, is perfectly safe to take, is not a quack nostrum, and produces results that are wonderful.

Price, $3 a bottle. Four times the quantity, $10. Buy a bottle. It will not disappoint you. Hodge, Davis & Co., wholesale agents.

Dr. R. F. Price, office Centennial Block, cor. Second and Morrison Sts, Portland.

Dr. R. F. Price, graduate of a German university, devotes special attention to the cure of "CHRONIC DISEASES," whatever their nature may be, particularly those of a delicate, complicated or obstinate character. Bad effects of youthful follies quickly cured. Manhood restored. Prompt relief for ladies out of health. Diploma and testimonials open for inspection. [illegible] No deception [illegible]

Read and Learn for Yourself.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the United States. Its wonderful success in curing consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400,000 bottles to the afflicted, free of charge, by druggists. No such a test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more? Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City.

WE ARE READY. Our Fall Stock is now on the shelves and ready for distribution to our various Patrons. RUST IN WHEAT.

A Lecture before the State Agricultural Society of California, at Sacramento, September 14, 1879, by Professor C. H. Dwinelle, Lecturer on Practical Agriculture in the University of California.

What is this rust of which we hear so much as an enemy to the wheat crop? It is a fungus; just as truly a plant as the wheat which it grows upon. There are many of the funguses with which we are familiar, as the mushrooms, toadstools and the like, but a large part of them can be seen only imperfectly, or not at all, without the aid of a microscope. Funguses have no flowers and no seeds. In place of seeds there are produced what are called spores; that is simple plant cells which are capable of growth and reproduction of their kind. These spores are produced in great numbers, and, if visible to the naked eye, appear like dust. Under the microscope they are seen to be exceedingly various in form in different species, and often very beautiful. Funguses are parasites, that is, they live upon other organized matter, either animal or vegetable. Some of them prefer living food, and some flourish upon that which is decomposing. They have not the green color which we usually think of as belonging to a vegetable. That color is produced by a substance called chlorophyl, which is one of the agents in assimilating the crude material taken up from the earth by plants and fitting it for plant food. As a fungus lives upon organized matter, which has already gone through this process, it has no need of chlorophyl.

The sickly appearance of rusty grain, and the red powder which rubs off from it, are familiar to every farmer, but few have had the opportunity to follow it through its various stages of development. Even among professional botanists there has not been the full knowledge of this subject that is desirable. By degrees, however, order has been brought out of confusion. What were supposed to be distinct species of fungus have been identified as simply different developments of the same thing. When a wheat plant is attacked by rust, yellow spots appear upon the leaves. The cuticle is raised over these spots as if by pressure from within, so as to give the appearance of more or less elongated pustules. Finally the pustules burst by the splitting of the cuticle. Under a good glass the pustule is seen to be full to overflowing with spores in various stages of development. They are simple vegetable cells, globular, or nearly so, and attached to short stems or pedicels. The younger ones are almost colorless, while the more mature ones are of an orange color. These spores may, under proper circumstances, grow and give rise to other rust spots. As has been said, they take the place of seeds. If the leaf is dissected it will be found that under this mass of spores are many fine filaments, penetrating the substance of the leaf and drawing upon it for the support of the fungus, as the roots of higher plants draw upon the soil. This root-like mass is called the mycelium. This fungus plant which I have described has received the botanical name of Trichobasis rubigo-vera, the true red rust of the farmers. Later in the season brown spots may appear upon the rusty wheat, either mixed in with the orange colored ones already described, or at a short distance from them. These also are fungus pustules, which burst and let loose innumerable spores. But most of the spores differ from those of the trichobasis in structure, as well as in color. While those had but a single cell and were spherical or nearly so, these are divided by a partition into two compartments, and are much longer than thick. The plant has been long known to science under the name of puccinia graminis. Puccinia refers to the closeness with which the spores are packed in the pustules; and graminis simply means of grain. This is the "mildew" of the English farmer. It is no wonder that at first "rust" and "mildew" were supposed to be distinct plants. Latterly as microscopes have been improved, and botanists have become more skillful in using them, it has been noted that the same pustules sometimes contain the simple orange spores of the rust, and the double brown cells of the mildew; and what is more, they spring from the same mycelium. In short, rust and mildew on grain are different forms of one and the same thing. When one of the spores of the mildew lodges in a moist place suitable for its germination, it sends out a number of fine, thread-like tubes, from which arise little stems bearing orange colored spherical fruits. These fruits in turn fall off and set up a growth on their own account. It has been thought possible, though I believe not proved, that still another form of fruit or spore may be produced, so much smaller that it may enter the circulation of the wheat through the roots or the small opening in the leaves called stomata.

There has been much discussion and surmise as to whether rust and mildew attacked wheat through the leaves or through the roots, but no very definite conclusion has been arrived at. Some have said that the spores entered the leaves through the air pores or stomata, but it happens that the spore so far known are larger than the pores. As I have hinted, there may be spores, not yet observed, so small as to enter these openings.

From what has been observed in similar plants it is fair to conjecture that a spore may germinate on a leaf and send out its thread-like tubes into the stomata, and through these tubes transfer its contents to the substance of the leaf, there to give rise to the mycelium or roots which support the perfect plant. This is, however, mere conjecture. Experiments by Prof. Fee indicate a probability that the rusts enter the plant which they attack by way of the roots, thence working their way to the stems and leaves. It is very desirable that the matter should be investigated further. If we can decide positively that rust attacks vegetation through the soil, and not through the air, we shall have taken a long step toward deciding whether we can fight it with any hope of success. To know from which direction the enemy is to approach is of vital importance to the general, and no less so to the farmer. If we could discard the air as a medium for spreading this pest, and confine our attention to the soil, our task would be reduced greatly. We could more reasonably hope to make some application to the soil which would check this fungus development than [illegible]

A farmer living on the bottom lands of the Merced river told me of a rather peculiar experience which he had with rust. Water was let into portions of a field too late in the season. The result was that the grain rusted just where the water had been. Of course this was but a common experience. But the next year the grasses and weeds on the same portions of the field were rusty, and this kept up for several seasons, marking out distinctly the course taken by the water. This case suggests at least a tainting of the soil by the rusty crop of grain.

Rust injures the berry of wheat by robbing it of its nutriment before it is filled. If it does not appear until the berry is well advanced it is not likely to greatly reduce the yield. If it has reached the dough stage there is little to fear. Then again, if the rust is confined to the leaves, the grain suffers much less than when the stem and chaff are attacked. Some years ago I was trying farming on reclaimed tule peat land, on Andrus Island, in this county. A neighbor had an extensive and very promising crop of wheat upon which the rust appeared. Fearing that he was about to lose the crop as grain he set about cutting it for hay. Fortunately he was delayed, so that but little was cut before the grain became plump, and he saw that he was needlessly alarmed. I have known frequent cases where rusty grain has been cut for hay and the heads have filled while it was curing in the cock.

Our farmers of the interior seem to have become so used to cutting wheat with the header when dead ripe, that they have forgotten that in the Atlantic states and Europe it is usual to cut it while the grain is still soft and let it fill in the shock. This method might not be practicable in the warmest sections, on account of the too rapid drying of the straw. Along the coast, on the delta lands and other moist regions where the rust is most likely to prevail, cutting early could probably be practiced with profit, if the grain were bound and shocked immediately. It would not only be a safeguard against rust, but would lessen the danger of shelling out in high winds. If the rust is confined to the leaves at the time of cutting, its development is checked by their drying, while the stalks may remain moist enough to feed the head for some time.

There is no doubt that the rust plant is as widely disseminated as the wheat plant. It can almost invariably be found in greater or less quantities when a field of wheat is [illegible] [illegible] which was but a few days before the pride of its owner. [illegible] the attacks of this and other funguses when one that was weakened [illegible] [illegible] the wheat increases the chances [illegible] great a supply of moisture [illegible] keeps the roots of the plant [illegible] [illegible] You have [illegible] wet winter [illegible] overcast weather [illegible] our coast [illegible] A field is often rusty [illegible] a storm which throws the grain down [illegible] those places. The joints are [illegible] broken, so that the sap is impeded and the circulation of air not being free it is damp, close and favors the fungus. The same conditions of the atmosphere that favor the potato blight, also a fungus, promote the growth of rust. The potato blight first made itself in force in this state a few years ago after several hot, sultry days. At the time I was on the reclaimed lands near the mouth of the San Joaquin river, and noted the sudden appearance of rust in hitherto healthy fields. It was specially noticeable where a shower of rain had lodged the grain.

Now I have little doubt that some present have been wishing that I would have done with describing the disease and prescribe some medicine for it. It may as well be confessed, once for all, that we know of no positive cure. The fact that there is a standing reward of $25,000 in Australia for the man who shall find such a cure is proof enough that it is not known. Our main hope seems to be in what the doctors call constitutional treatment—a general toning up of the patient. There are certain parts of the state where the conditions of climate are so bad that wheat is almost sure to rust. It would be best to give up the crop in such a place and try something else—barley, rye or oats, for example. If your land holds the rain water too long, drain it, if you can do so at a reasonable cost. You can find out the probable cost and benefit by trying a small piece first.

There is one method of avoiding rust in wheat which is unquestionably good. There are certain varieties of wheat which are much less subject to injury from its attacks than others. By sowing them we can greatly diminish the chances of loss. Several have already considerable reputation in this state, but do not seem to be as widely known as they deserve. The Odessa wheat is highly commended by the farmers of our southern coast, particularly about Anaheim and other places in Los Angeles county.

They tried it at first in a small way, and were so well pleased that this year several large crops are reported. I had a little plat sowed with it in our experimental garden at the university last winter, and it has fully borne out its reputation as withstanding rust. There were only a few stalks that showed any traces of the fungus, and those not enough to injure them. Almost all of the other wheats in the garden were rusted to some extent, and some were entirely ruined. The grain is not one that would by its appearance attract a farmer who has been in the habit of raising the large white varieties. It is rather undersized, and of a dark amber color. There was an impression at first that it would not sell well, but there was a sale of a considerable quantity reported in San Francisco a few months ago, at full rates for milling. A farmer and former miller who happened to be present when the matter was under discussion before the class in agriculture last winter, examined the grain, and expressed the opinion that it would make good flour. It may not prove as good in the interior as on the coast. Those who live in a rusty section would do well to give it a trial.

There is a variety known as Siberian wheat which is also said to be little affected by rust. The grain growers in parts of Contra Costa commend it highly on this account. I cannot speak of it from any personal experience. There are undoubtedly many other wheats that are unusually hardy in this respect. Farmers may do the state great service, and reap profit themselves, by watching their crops closely in this respect. There is very little seed wheat sown that is not more or less mixed. Sometimes, when the main part of a crop is rusted, a few plants from another kind of seed will be unharmed and yield well. Such exceptions should be noted carefully, and the hardy grain saved, if it is not of a common kind. As a general rule, the early grain is less likely to rust than that which comes later. This is because it is not in the tender, juicy state when the warm weather comes on.

There is a statement on record that a German farmer succeeded in protecting his wheat from rust by a dressing applied before sowing. "About six hours before sowing he prepared a steep of three measures of powdered quicklime and ten measures of strong brine. Two quarts of this he poured on a peck of wheat, stirring it with a spade until every kernel was covered and white with the preparation." Such a dressing should kill the spores on the grain and give it vigor to resist diseases. Various washings and other applications are made to the seed wheat before sowing. Most, if not all of these must be set down as still in the experimental stage. Their value must depend mainly on the solution of the question which I have spoken of: Does the rust gain access to the wheat through the ground or through the air? Soaking in a weak solution of carbolic acid is one of these prescriptions.

This whole subject is a serious one, and beset with many difficulties. We should not be hasty in drawing conclusions from one or two experiments, whether they be favorable or otherwise. Careful investigation has solved problems that seemed as difficult as this. We should assume the position of students. This brief lecture was intended simply as an introduction to a discussion in which I trust all practical farmers will feel free to take part and give us the benefit of their experience.

Primeval Europe.

It is the fate of continents, no less than of the human communities that inhabit them, to have their origin shrouded in obscurity. When the curtain of darkness begins to rise from out primeval Europe it reveals to us a scene marvelously unlike that of the existing continent. The land then lay chiefly to the north and northwest, probably extending as far as the edge of the great submarine plateau by which the European ridge is prolonged under the Atlantic for 230 miles to the west of Ireland. Worn fragments of that land exist in Finland, Scandinavia, and the northwest of Scotland, and there are traces of what seem to have been some detached islands in Central Europe, notably in Bohemia and Bavaria. Its original hight and extent can of course never be known; but some idea of them may be formed by considering the bulk of solid rock which was formed out of the [illegible] merely one portion of the detritus washed from its surface and laid down in the sea, viz: that which is comprised in what is termed the Silurian system, and if we assume that it spreads over 60,000 square miles of Britain with an average thickness of 16,000 feet, or three miles, which is probably under the truth, then we obtain the enormous mass of 180,000 cubic miles. The magnitude of this pile of material may be better realized if we reflect that it would form a mountain-ridge three times as long as the Alps, or from the North Cape to Marseilles (1800 miles), with a breadth of more than thirty-three miles, and an average hight of 16,000 feet,—that is, higher than the summit of Mont Blanc. All this vast pile of sedimentary rock was worn from the slopes and shores of the primeval northern land. Yet it represents but a small fraction of the material so removed, for the sea of that ancient time spread over nearly the whole of Europe eastward into Asia, and everywhere received tribute of sand and mud from the adjoining shores.

Mrs. Burnett author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's," has returned to Washington for the season.
